

Smart thinking for an historic landmark development

In collaboration with
Galliard Homes and CJ O'Shea

CASE STUDY

The Stage is a prestigious, high-rise, mixed-use development in the bustling heart of Shoreditch on the site where the Curtain Theatre stood between 1577 and 1624.

Considered to be one of the longest standing Shakespearean playhouses, the historical remains will form the backdrop of a magnificent collection of residential, commercial and entertainment space, along with public parks, bars and restaurants.

Galliard Homes are delivering the scheme and have appointed CJ O'Shea as the main contractor. They selected a black colour palette to the bathrooms which demanded a bold, contemporary design. Towelrads worked to the exact specification requirements supplying the Kensington model with a bold, square bar design in black finish.

The radiators have been installed as electric-only towel warmers with SMART thermostatic heating elements in matching black controls, which enables temperature adjustment and a boosted power mode.
